

Why Mediate?

To be SMART about your law practice, of course!

In short, you mediate because it works. It works for your clients and it works for the attorneys who have case loads that can become overwhelming. When that happens, the very people who should benefit from your work—you and your client—may get less than optimum results.

Mediation is a tried and true method to resolve disputes.

It reduces rising litigation costs, it is a more efficient use of time, as it creates an information channel between you and your adversary, and another channel between you and your client. Both are valuable tools in the case process.

Many attorneys study hard to work harder. That is the wrong mindset. SMART attorneys have a different mindset.

“ SMART attorneys studied hard to work easier, with better results for all. SMART/mediation does that for you, your client and your practice. ”
